INFLUENTIAL ALUMNI

Ellen Latham '77

Growing up on Ontario Street in Niagara Falls, Ellen Latham always had a future connection to NCCC. Her father, Arthur Calandrelli, was once a popular gym teacher in the city. He believed in the importance of education, physical fitness, and giving back to your community which he then passed down to Ellen.

"NCCC offered courses that prepared me for what I wanted to specialize in with my future." After graduating from NCCC in 1977 with an Associate's Degree in Arts and Science, Ellen went on to earn her Bachelor's in Physical Education and her Master's in Exercise Science from SUNY at Buffalo. "NCCC presented me an intimate environment that allowed me to successfully focus and achieve."

And achieve she did. Now 60-years old, Ellen is the creator and owner of Orangetheory Fitness. What makes this fitness program different though is that all of your 60-minute workouts are tracked wearing a wristband that monitors the pace and color of your workout effort for all to see on an overhead board. The classes are designed for every level of fitness with a personal trainer. Ellen pledges to help customers lose between 500 and 1,000 calories during each hour-long session. For 24-36 hours after your workout, Ellen says you'll continue to burn extra calories.

Following in her father's beliefs, Ellen is on the verge of opening her third studio in Buffalo. She is determined to leave her mark on this community. By the end of 2016, she plans to have opened over 1,000 boutique franchises throughout the country. Through all of this though, she remembers to stay humble and think of her father. "He taught me how to focus on what you have, not what you don't have and reach for the stars." NCCC honored her this May as the 2016 Keynote Commencement Speaker where she told the graduates to have "relentless focus" and "believe in yourself" just as she did.

Ron Winkley '78

Councilman, trustee, public servant, educator, Chief of Police, and NCCC Foundation chair are just some of the titles that '78 Criminal Justice alum Ron Winkley has been given. Adding to that list is 2016 recipient of the Town of Lewiston Citizen of the Year award. This is the second time Ron has received the award.

Ron first began his career in Criminal Justice by working summers at the Niagara County Jail. He then earned his Associates at NCCC followed by his Bachelors at the Rochester Institute of Technology and Masters from Niagara University. He also graduated from the FBI National Academy. In 1981, Ron joined the then-Lewiston Village Police Department where he worked as Chief of Police for 26 years until his retirement in 2007.

Throughout his time on the force, Ron spent 18 years teaching D.A.R.E, was instrumental in the consolidation of the Village and Town of Lewiston police departments, and served as a liaison for the Niagara County Law Enforcement Academy. Upon retiring from the police force in 2007, Ron became a full-time professor at Niagara University, served as a Village of Lewiston trustee, was a member of the Town of Lewiston Council in 2010, and Chair of NCCC's Foundation from 2011-2013. ALL IN THE FAMILY

Melanie Tisdale '73

“There are no books on the basics to prepare for this trip!” Melanie exclaimed. I laughed, but began to wonder the same thing as to what exactly I would pack if I were sailing from Youngstown to the Bahamas over the next few months like alumna Melanie Tisdale is planning to do with her husband. “We don’t have a plan as to how long we’re going to be gone for. It’s for as long as we like.”

With no timeframe, no exact plan, and no idea of what one will actually need, it’s a good thing that sailing has been a big part of Melanie’s life since her early 20’s. She was the first female Commodore of the Youngstown Yacht Club and over the past 30-years has raced with her husband in places such as San Diego, Chicago, and Lake Erie. She has been fortunate enough to have experience cruising for several weeks at a time, but never for a few months. She told me, “I’m taking this trip because ten years from now I don’t want to look back and regret not doing all of this.”

“I just hope that I can pass on some of the things that are meaningful in life and help apply them to NCCC.”

Her lifelong excursion began when she was 8-years old moving to the Niagara area from England. She chose to attend NCCC with an idea of what she wanted to do, but not being entirely sure. During that time, NCCC was in the process of being built. “It looked like a really nice campus and I knew that my credits could always transfer.”

In 1973, Melanie received her Associate’s Degree in Legal Secretarial Science from NCCC. “I was always leaning towards law, but this program helped reassure me of what I was looking to do.” Throughout her time here, she was a member of Phi Theta Kappa, wrote for the Spirit Newspaper, and participated in theater. “Sometimes people think that you’re not getting the same level of education if you were at a four-year school. You’re luckier at a two-year school because you actually get to connect with your professors in a way that you don’t at a larger school and we’ve had some really great professors.”

In an effort to find a way to give back to NCCC, Melanie began working there. For over ten years, she was a Technical Assistant in the Learning Skills Center testing incoming students on reading, writing, and math for their basic skills placement. While working there, she put herself through her Bachelor’s Degree graduating from Buffalo State College. Afterwards, she continued on to Law School and graduated in 1988.

Over the next 25-years, she pursued her dream of opening her own practice of Tisdale Coykendall. She was also a member of the Division of the Community Foundation of Greater Buffalo, Chair of the NCCC Scholarship Committee, and currently serves on the Foundation Board of Directors at NCCC. In her spare time, amongst her passion for sailing, she enjoys photography and graphic design work.

Recently, she has taken a leave of absence to set sail to the Bahamas, but has never forgotten the impact that NCCC has played in her life. When asked why she thinks it is important to give back, she responded, “I just hope that I can pass on some of the things that are meaningful in life and help apply them to NCCC. When I work on things such as the Foundation Scholarship Committee it feels good because it fulfills a real need of the students and allows me to be personally involved instead of just monetarily. NCCC is a Smart Place to Start and really allows you the opportunity to set a goal and achieve it.”

ALUMNI SPOTLIGHT

Lester Robinson III '87

At some point in our lives, either ourselves or someone we know may need additional care. Nursing home costs are projected to rise to more than $175,000 per year on average by 2021. Les Robinson, '87 NCCC Business Program graduate, asks the question, what are your financial plans?

Recently, Les has authored a new chapter to his guidebook titled, "The Essentials for Long Term Care Planning." Have you saved the hundreds of thousands it may require for professional care over multiple years; or would a long term care insurance policy make more sense for you? This guidebook challenges us to answer these key questions and more about the odds of needing care and the risks of not having a long term care plan.

Les is a Senior Long Term Care Planner, verified Agent, New York State Partnership Certified and Special Care Planner with over 25 years of experience in the industry. Since 2008, he has been on the NCCC Foundation Board and Alumni Association Committee. The guidebook can be provided to anyone via email through les.robinson@acsiapartners.net.

Laura Schuler '04

"I don't see why anyone wouldn't want to go to NCCC," Laura says as we begin our interview. She is beaming with pride as she explains why giving back to NCCC is so important to her. "I love being able to say that I came back here, that I'm alumni, I volunteer, and that I'm able to teach." Laura Schuler, '04 Economic Crime Investigation alumna, has truly come full circle here.

After attending Newfane High School, Laura was fortunate enough to receive a Distinguished Student Scholarship from NCCC. This scholarship is the most prestigious award given to high school seniors in Niagara County offering two years of tuition-free education at NCCC for students who exemplify superior academics, community service, and commitment to the county. "It was nice that someone recognized my hard work and it made me feel like my time here really meant something." Laura now works as a police officer for the Lockport Police Department after graduating from Hilbert College with her Bachelor's in Economic Crime Investigation. She also earned her Master's in Criminal Justice Administration from Niagara University.

While continuing her work as an officer, Laura has come back to NCCC as an adjunct faculty to help students forge their own paths and embrace all that NCCC has to offer. She considers NCCC a really great place to start for everyone who attends. "Students are provided with a range of options from diverse electives to faculty and staff who have real world experiences to share." She loves when students outside of the program take her course as an elective because she believes it helps them expand their overall learning experience and maybe even consider a different career path.

The feeling of being able to help students is what continues to drive Laura forward. "Being a teacher is one of my favorite aspects of my career," she says. "I love being able to come here and watch the 'ah ha' moment that students get when something clicks with them; that is the best feeling in the world."

▲ NCCC's first graduating class of 1965 celebrated their 50th reunion in August 2015 at the Niagara Falls Culinary Institute. A large breakfast buffet was served and guests had the chance to tour the facilities, watch chef Kara Weber bake a chocolate ganache cake, and later taste test it. Classmates were happy to reunite and bond over their time at Nabisco Tech.
