NCCC to Launch “Morning Thunder” Podcast

NCCC is launching its first ever podcast “Morning Thunder” and we want you to be a part of it! Tune in at your convenience at <http://niagaracc.suny.edu/morning-thunder/> and submit ideas for the topics you want to hear about by emailing ace@niagaracc.suny.edu. Co-hosts Denise Prohaska from Admissions and Madison Ebsary from ACE will guide you through fun interviews from departments across both campuses. The range of topics are diverse and have already included a discussion with campus counselors about mental health practices, tips on prepping for finals with on-site academic coaches, and the impact of grades on students’ transferability and Financial Aid. Future episodes are currently being recorded and will include speaking to Program Coordinator, Aaron Cobaugh, about the Animal Management degree and his thoughts on “Tiger King!”

Upcoming SUNY Survey

SUNY wants to hear from you about your remote instruction experience.

In the next couple of weeks you will be receiving an email from SUNY with a survey attached. Please complete the information and return it. Your responses will help SUNY and NCCC plan for the future semesters in dealing with the COVID 19 crisis and providing college courses and student resources for the fall semester and beyond. Thank you!

Julia D Pitman, Vice President of Student Services

Good Luck on Your Finals!
